

L'Œil d'une Parisienne ?

A dynamic Parisian, electric scooters and eclectic walks!

L'Œil d'une Parisienne shows you Sandrine and her desire to share her love for Paris in an ecological way.

As a daughter, granddaughter, great-granddaughter of the Parisians from the suburbs, Sandrine proposes her 'look' at the city. On foot, by scooter, Sandrine walks the curious, lovers, buddies and even tourists! Alone, in 2, 3 or 4. Somehow unheard of—the proposed routes alternate long and short stories, inescapable places as well as unsuspected areas.

Former collaborator at 'Courrier International', 'L'Expansion', and 'L'Express', Sandrine launched L'Œil d'une Parisienne

after a journey unlike any other in Tokyo... "In April 2014, my husband offered me a surprise with a plane ticket to Japan with a fortnight on the spot without organizing the stay. Feeling pretty excited, I didn't stop talking about this to people around me until a friend gave me her cousin's contact details, who was Tokyoite and Francophile. Her cousin and I emailed each other and one day she suggested that we play tour guides. It was dead good on the spot! Her cousin plotted the journey with first-class attention: completely adapted to our cravings, every single detail was customerised, nothing but for the pleasure of our eyes and so out of the routine. The idea of creating a real concept from this experience in MY city, including the places with worship was therefore born. Simplicity and complicity were two intrinsic parts in the project. I then began to share my Paris with friends and friends' friends.... The electric scooter quickly started playing a critical role in this project: fast, safe and very easy to use—it allows us to widen the scope of possibilities'.
